| 9:00 – 9:05a | Welcome remarks by Dean and President Eric Janus |
| 9:05 – 9:15a | Introduction and Agenda by Master of Ceremonies, Emily E. Duke |
| 9:15 – 10:05 | Overview of legal obligations and ethics considerations in relation to electronic discovery. The rules allow discovery of “reasonably accessible” electronically stored information – but what does that mean? What is proportionality? How can I keep the e-discovery obligations proportional with the size/merits of my case without getting hit with sanctions? These topics and more will be discussed by our panel:
Hon. Jerome Abrams; Kathy Digiorno, Esq.; Heidi Fessler, Esq.; Charles Ragan, Esq.; Bridget Sullivan; John Degnan, Esq. (moderator) |
| 10:05 – 10:20a | BREAK |
| 10:20 – 11:10a | Who, where, what, when, and how does your client keep its information? Best practices for working with clients to preserve relevant, discoverable information. Learn about the types of things to ask your client in order to identify sources of electronically stored information (and paper), and how to implement an effective litigation hold. These topics and more will be discussed by our panel:
Bart Gernander, Esq.; Michael Mangold, Esq.; Tim O’Shea, Esq |
| 11:10a – 12:00p | So, now I know what to preserve, but how the heck can I do that? I’m an attorney, not an IT specialist! Learn about technologies and resources to help you figure out how to preserve different media, including computers and networks, information stored on social media, smartphones, and tablets. |

These topics and more will be discussed by our panel:
Jeff Beard; John Carney, Esq.; Mary Franz; Anna Horning Nygren, Esq.

12:00 LUNCH hosted by our generous technology/litigation support providers:

12:45 – 1:15 Keynote speaker: Kyle Loven, Chief Division Counsel, FBI with introduction by Professor Michael Steenson

1:30p – 2:20p Wow! I had no idea how many gigabytes or terabytes one client could generate! Learn best practices for creating and implementing a review and production strategy that you can bring to your discovery conference and defend if challenged.

These topics and more will be discussed by our panel:
Brian Clark, Esq.; Sten-Erik Hoidal, Esq.; Courtney Ward Reichard, Esq.

2:20p – 3:10p Technology again!?! Not every case is complex, and your review/production doesn't have to be either . . . but clients now have more information, and it is stored on more devices. Learn about IT technologies that are available for cases, from the simple to the complex, to help you review and produce responsive information in the age of "Big Data."

These topics and more will be discussed by our panel:
